

We joined forces with Hillebrand.

We are excited to share some news about the future of our company. We joined forces with Hillebrand, the global leading service provider in the forwarding, transport and logistics of alcoholic beverages and other products that require special care. Since 2003 we've partnered with Hillebrand (through its North American subsidiary formally known as Satellite Logistics Group, Inc). They share our passion for a personal, friendly and first-class service and this is the reason why we decide to sell to them our companies, Royal Logistics and Royal Service Transport.

We will remain on board to support the transition of the business, its customers, employees and vendors. We see this a good opportunity for our employees to grow and prosper professionally and we are confident in that outcome under the Hillebrand mantle.

All our employees will join the Hillebrand team and our company will be renamed Hillebrand to create consistency and integrate the Royal activities in the North American organization under Scott Moorad's leadership.

Hillebrand was founded in 1844 in Mainz, Germany. The company is the global leading service provider in the forwarding, transport and logistics of wine, spirits, beer and, adjacent to that, other products that require special care. In October 2019, the company completed a major global rebrand, under the name Hillebrand, affiliating its companies for an enhanced customer experience in its 175th anniversary year. The unification enables Hillebrand to present its specialized logistic solutions under one name.

Through its global carrier network Hillebrand manages logistics and transport for any quantity from a single bottle to bulk, from all origins to all destinations, for all modalities. Hillebrand is known for its tailor-made solutions to improve efficiency in its customers' supply chain, generating revenues of EUR 1.3 Billion with a team of 2,400 professionals located in 90 countries. We invite you to visit their webiste: www.hillebrand.com

We are really excited about this new step for our compnay and the promissing future that our customers and employees will have with Hillebrand.
